

QUICK VERDICT EXPECTED IN THE "TAR PARTY" CASE

Men Who Made Girl Victim of Brutal Attack Liable to Get Long Prison Terms.

NORWALK, O., Nov. 15.—Ernest Welch, the first of six men to be tried for the tarring of Minnie La Valley, at West Clarkfield last August, probably will soon know whether he is acquitted or is to serve a penitentiary sentence of from two to ten years' duration. Arguments were made in the summing up and the case was ready for the jury this afternoon.

The specific charge against Welch is "riotous conspiracy." If he is not found guilty on this charge, Prosecutor Young has intimated that the cases against Harlow Welch, Carl and Joseph Sly, Reginald Thomas and Joseph Cummings, the other defendants, may be dropped.

Judge Garver in his charge said that if it was shown that more than two of the men at the tarring were masked, a conviction for "riotous conspiracy" would be possible.

The case went to the jury at 2:18 P. M.

"DID A GOOD JOB," CREDITED TO GIRL ACCUSED OF MURDER

Woman Detective Testifies
Prisoner Made Admissions to Her in Flippant Way.

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 15.—Miss Cecilia Farley's composure in court during her trial for the murder of Alvin H. Zollinger, her married sweetheart, has been commented on so much that the girl to-day said:

"I wish to wipe out the impression that I am indifferent as to the outcome of my trial. I am not hard-hearted and oblivious to my surroundings just because I do not weep in court."

The State was to finish to-day and the defense will begin Monday, Jerome B. Quigley, her fiancé, told the jury late yesterday how Miss Farley had reluctantly consented to become his wife.

"She gave in and permitted me to slip a ring upon her finger only when I said that we would let bygones be bygones and start in with a new slate," Quigley testified.

Mrs. Pearl Belden, a woman detective of Cleveland, to-day told the jury in the Farley case of how Cecilia Farley had confessed to having done the shooting while both women were in the Franklin County Jail, occupying adjoining cells. According to the detective's testimony concerning the alleged confession, Miss Farley had told her that she had "done a good job" and Mrs. Zollinger ought to be glad.

The detective then told of how the girl had said that she would plead either "emotional insanity," "self-defense" or "accidental shooting."

She quoted Miss Farley as saying that her attorneys would be paid $5,000 for defending her, "a big price for the killing of one man."

The witness told of how Miss Farley had told her that only three people knew who fired the fatal shot, and that one was dead, and that the other two were herself and Jerome Quigley, the man whom she was to marry.

The stenographer was then quoted as saying that she had not pleaded guilty to police officials, but that she was not under oath, and could not be convicted on that testimony. According to the story, Miss Farley then said that she had decided to stand trial for the shooting because she knew she would have a better chance of being acquitted than Quigley.

Mrs. Zollinger, the advertising man's widow, was called on the best witness for the State, and, under intense nervous strain, told of how she had taken Miss Farley's letters from her husband's pockets and had read them. Several times during the telling of her story the witness became so nervous that she had to rest before answering further questions.

She testified that she had read letters from the stenographer from Kansas City and other points, addressed to "Dear Dutch" and signed "Dear Irish," telling of her love for him. In one of the letters, she testified, she was referred to as "the landlady."

Francis M. Bacon's Estate.
The will of Francis M. Bacon, former head of the commission "dry goods" house of Bacon & Co., who died Sept. 21, 1912, was filed today for probate in the Surrogate's Court. The document disposed of more than half a million dollars of property, of which $250,000 was left to hospitals, benevolent societies and churches. The bulk of the estate is vested in the business.

HOLD ON! LISTEN TO THIS.
Are you interested in the Balkan mix-up?
Maybe not. Some people aren't. But it's dollars to doughnuts and kishinoris to carrots that you're interested in love and a good fight.
Also in a story of a Yankee youth who can plunge into the Balkans and fight with fists and brains and find time to win a glorious girl, besides.

That's the sort of thing that happens in "Hawthorne of the U. S. A.," by Albert Payson Terhune, founded on J. B. Fagan's successful play of the same name now running in New York.

"Hawthorne of the U. S. A." is going to run as a serial in The Evening World. Beginning Tuesday, November 19.

It's a great story. Don't forget to read it. Remember the date is Tuesday, November 19.

At $16.75

for $21.50 values

and $11.75

for $15.00 values

The word "new" tells much, but other features of these smart and jaunty turnouts are the distinctiveness of styles, the care with which important, but often neglected, details of tailoring and finish are executed. It would take the most talented custom tailors to match them and you know their prices would be something like double these.

Small and Slender Women Will Find Excellent Fittings in Misses' Suits; 14, 16 and 18 Years.

The Best Clothes Proposition Ever Put Up to the Good Judgment of Sensible, Well Dressed Men

And When We Tell You They
Are $18.00 to $25.00 Values We Know That You Will Know It
When You See Them

Special at $12.50

We never quote values merely as a specious enticement—that is not only old fashioned, useless, and bad business ethics, but we find it unnecessary. We give these clothes a fair regular valuation of $18.00 to $25.00, because that is exactly what they are—clothes of similar quality and, perhaps, equal in style and tailoring are sold to-day in hundreds of good clothing shops in America at $18.00 to $25.00, fairly enough.

O'Neill lowered the price solely by making special contracts for enormous quantities for this and others of our Fifty Associated Stores.

New Materials

Suits of snappy Cassimeres, smart Novelty Mixtures, distinctive Striped Effects, modest Plain Shades and the always dressy Plain and Fancy Navy Blue Fabrics and the correct conventional Black.

A Victor for Xmas

Do Your Christmas Victor Shopping Early—and Do It Here.

A PICTURE—The evening meal is over; father, mother and the children adjourn to the comfy living room. Father settles down in his big chair, while mother reposes herself comfortably in the wide-arm "wicker." Young Jim crosses his long, growing legs where he sits on the couch, and little Ben chooses the wide ranging ground of the floor for his. Susie, the 12-year-old, scrutinizes the record cabinet and selects a Sousa march for her overture. They can almost see the broad back of John Philip as he faces his band and raises his baton. Crash!—they start! Father feels himself lifted in imagination—his shoulders stiffened, his step high. Mother taps her foot and her eyes sparkle with buoyancy. Young Jim closes his eyes and dreams of brave deeds. Little Ben alone yields to the impulse and parades around the room. Then follows "A Harry Lauder" with its infectious laughs, now Caruso's dramatic tenor fills the room with an aria from "Boheme." And now John McCormack brings a throbbing to their throats with one of the old-time melodies of tender sentiment.
